Makeup That Really Delivers

Chances are someone you know is selling beauty products to make a living or extra cash. Want to help her out—and look good in the process? Purchase one of these direct-sell products, chosen by New York City makeup artist Tira Turnbow, and we guarantee that you'll be happy to unpack it in 5 to 10 business days.

✉ AVON →
 Try the Ideal Flawless Invisible Coverage Liquid Foundation ($11; avon.com). "The formula is full coverage, but it's also really easy to blend," says Turnbow. "That means you can spot-apply for concealer-like results or spread a small amount over your whole face for a natural, even finish."

✉ MARY KAY →
 The universally wearable Lip Liner in Neutral ($12; marykay.com) is a makeup essential, according to Turnbow. It locks any shade of lipstick in place for hours and keeps color from traveling into fine lines. Tip: Apply it all over lips (not just along the edges) for the most natural look. Top it with Creme Lipstick, shown here in Apple Berry ($13; marykay.com).

✉ JAFRA →
 The range of browns in this Powder Eyeshadow Trio in Cappuccino ($16; jafrausa.com) works on everyone. "A chocolaty, smoky eye is much more flattering than harsh black or gray," says Turnbow. To do: Dust the middle shade from lash lines to creases, apply the espresso hue on the outer corners for definition, and then dot the cream on inner corners to brighten.

✉ ARBONNE
 Every woman can benefit from the Sheer Glow Highlighter ($40; arbonne.com), says Turnbow. Smooth just a drop or two of the pearly lotion all over for a luminescent effect that makes imperfections less noticeable.
